Question 10 Comments (continuation)

Plus a crumbling infra-structure. A huge inappropriate housing development is currently at the planning stage, which if given the go ahead, has the potential to increase the population of Kingussie by 50%. It is hard to see how this could be beneficial to anyone except the developer, as not only is the area low on employment, but most of the projected housing will be too expensive for local people to afford.

It is appreciated that as Kingussie is within the Cairngorm National Park, most planning and environmental concerns will be in the sole remit of the CNPA. However, it would seem that Kingussie is near the very bottom of the list where Highland Council investment is concerned, and its people deserve better.
