

Welcome to Carbisdale, a mix of semi-natural ancient woodland and long-established forestry plantation with a range of paths and tracks accessible for the public to explore. From winding paths to the magnificent View Rock and wide forestry tracks to Inveroykel in the north and Cornhill, Ardgay to the south.

Dogs should be kept under close control, please take away all your litter (including dog poo) and leave no trace of your visit.

Contact

For further information on core paths in Highland or enquiries relating to the exercise of recreational access rights please email

access@highland.gov.uk

You can see all the Highland Core Paths via the Online Map Viewer at:
www.highland.gov.uk/corepathsmap

Stiùireadh Choilltean Woodland Management

The woodland at Carbisdale is managed by Forestry and Land Scotland to provide a well managed resource using low-impact forestry techniques – this favours the important cultural and environmental values of the wood and respects its setting within the wider landscape.

The Central Sutherland Land Management Plan has aspirations to provide a healthy, productive and multi-purpose resource that is accessible, works with nature and cultural heritage, and delivers public benefit.

Slighean is Frith-rathaidean

Trails and Tracks

There are a variety of paths, tracks and informal trails at Carbisdale which are used for walking, cycling and horse riding. Please use the forest with respect to other users who may be present and remember:

Fàilte gu Càrbasdal Welcome to Carbisdale

Forestry and Land Scotland
Coilltearachd agus
Fearann Alba

For a download version of this leaflet go to www.highland.gov.uk/carbisdaleforest

May 2025

