Please note that the Council will be unable to provide any resources not specified on this form or supporting information.

Foodbank was launched in 2005 with the opening of the Foodbank Centre in Madras Street, Inverness. A second Foodbank Centre was opened at Hilton Village in 2014 to provide easier access to clients in the Ness-side, Inverness South and Millburn Wards of the city. One of the two centres is open each day Monday to Friday.

These Foodbank Centres are part Highland Foodbank which has a Highland-wide reach, but the Inverness operation is managed from the Hilton Foodbank Centre, and a new food warehouse serving the Inverness Foodbank Centres was set up in 2014 in the Blythswood facility in Harbour Road

The Foodbank exists to provide emergency food supplies to local people suffering financial crisis – these come from a wide cross-section of the community including people awaiting benefits, people on low incomes, and people who have been made redundant. The food distributed by Highland Foodbank is donated by members of the local community, including groups such as churches and schools. Clients are referred to Foodbank by one of the 100 partner agencies who work with Foodbank in Inverness including the Highland Council's Care Health & Social Care Service, the Inverness and

Hilton Service Points, the Highland Council's Housing Services, the Scottish Welfare Fund, local branches of the Citizens' Advice Bureau and the local Women's Refuge. The Foodbank Centres aim to offer a welcoming space where besides getting food, client can discuss their current issues should they wish to do so, and be sign poste to other appropriate agencies should this be necessary and should they wish.

Usage of Highland Foodbank remains high – 2710 people from the Inverness area were provided with food in financial year 2014/15.

The £20,000 being sought from the Common Good Fund will contribute to the total running costs of the Inverness element of the Project, - the Madras Street, Hilton and warehouse facilities.

- 1.5 Please tell us how your project or activity will help the Council to meet its Public Sector Equality Duty to:
 - Get rid of unlawful discrimination, harassment and victimisation;
 - Make sure that people from different groups* are treated fairly and have equal chances to use services and that there is more equality between groups*;

Make sure that people from different groups* get on together.

*Groups are people who have "protected characteristics" in the Equality Act: age, gender reassignment, pregnancy and maternity, religion or belief, sexual orientation, disability, marriage and civil partnership, race and sex.

For example are people with protected characteristics likely to face barriers; how you intend to tackle these barriers; does your project promote inclusion?

The service provided in Inverness by Highland Foodbank addresses in an equitable way the needs of people in the community who are facing financial crisis. The Foodbank service is available to everyone in need, and clients are referred by one of the local partner organisations, of which there are about 100, including the Highland Council's Care and Learning Service the Inverness and Hilton Service Points, the Highland Council's Housing Services, the Scottish Welfare Fund, the local branches of the Citizens' Advice Bureau and the local Women's Refuge. These partner organisations are responsible for assessing the need of the clients before referring them. The opening of a second Foodbank Centre in Hilton, Inverness has enabled people in the south of the city to access the service more easily. In addition its opening days and hours co-ordinate with those of the Madras Street Centre, so that the Hilton Centre (open initially 6 hours per week) will be open when the Madras Street Centre (open 8 hours per week) is closed and vice versa - the opening of the Hilton Centre has therefore increased the number of hours per week when the Foodbank service is accessible in Inverness.

| b) | What geographic areas and/or communities of interest (e.g. Young people, people with disabilities, older people, people from an ethnic minority background) does organisation cover? |
| | The Highland Foodbank's parent organisation Blythswood Care was launched 1966. Blythswood Care is committed to providing holistic care for people marginalised and in need, chiefly in Eastern Europe and India, but also throug the Foodbank Project in the Scottish Highlands. The Highland Foodbank was launched in 2005 with the opening of the Foodbank Centre in Madras Street, Inverness. The Foodbank exists to provide emergency food supplies to local people suffering financial crisis – these come from a wide cross-section of the community including people awaiting benefits, people on low incomes, and people who have been made redundant. The food distributed by Highland Foodbank is donated by members of the local community. The Foodbank has Highland-wide reach (and a Foodbank Development Officer is developing Foodbanks in other parts of the Highland Council Area) but a majority of clie come from the Inverness Wards, where they contact the service either at the Madras Street or Hilton Foodbank Centres. The Foodbank Centres, staffed by trained volunteers who work with supervision from the Foodbank Co-ordinat seek not simply to provide food, but to offer a welcoming, supportive environment where clients can feel comfortable, and, should they wish, can to about their current issues and be referred to other appropriate agencies as required. |
| c) | Is there any restriction on who can join your organisation? |

PART 1: ABOUT YOUR ACTIVITIES OR PROJECT

Guidance on completing part 1: ABOUT YOUR ACTIVITIES OR PROJECT

1.1 What is the name of your activity or project?

Live, Learn Work

When will your activity or project take place? (specifically those for which you are seeking an award from The Highland Council)

Start date (month and year) 1 January 2016 End date (month and year) 31 July 2016 Location: From base at 17a Hilton Village, extending across Inverness city and wider Inverness area

- 1.3 What activity or project do you want us to support? For example:.
 - Aims of the project and how you are going to do it
 - Help with running costs or for a specific project or activity?
 - Who will benefit

Please note that the Council will be unable to provide any resources not specified on this form or supporting information.

The aim is to enable vulnerable young people to learn how to manage their first home and to develop essential skills for work, in a manner that they can take into the future. The project involves training leading to delivery of a qualification that our staff can teach to young people in their homes, in work, training or at school, through a structured programme covering:

- What is required to keep a home, attending appointments, independent travel, dealing with mail, paying bills on time, living on a budget, keeping their home clean, laundering clothing, engaging with their landlord, setting up a Bank account, connecting utilities, registering with doctor, dentist etc, understanding what risky behaviours should be avoided and why, and knowing where to go for help if required in future; and
- How to work alongside others, communicating appropriately at work; attending work on time, managing breaks appropriately, following instructions, following holiday and absence procedures, meeting workplace dress code, understanding their performance at work, understanding the skills and behaviour that are important to employers, and the consequences of not meeting these, using appropriate tools or equipment, preparing and managing a safe workplace, and complete tasks on time.

Based on our experience of working with vulnerable and disadvantaged young people in Highland, Calman has developed a customised award which has been accredited by SCQF and placed on the framework at Level 4. This award incorporates units that teach young people the core employability skills identified above, combined with the ability to keep a roof over their heads. To achieve the qualification, young people in a work setting or in their home have to demonstrate that they have these abilities, and in the process they build up a personal portfolio of evidence. This record of practical achievement, delivered in the real life setting of their home, school or work, is evidenced by achievement of a qualification. This qualification demonstrates to the young person, to landlords and to future employers that the young person has the knowledge, skills and understanding that are essential to managing independent living and having a job, which increases their chances of finding or keeping a home or job in future. Because the qualification is achieved through real practical experience it gives the young person a track record of what they have managed to do consistently that they can draw upon in future, when they are on their own.

There is scope to require that young people work towards the qualification when they are allocated accommodation, so that they can learn how to manage and keep their home even as they settle in. In addition, young people referred to Calman for employability training will work towards achievement of the Live, Learn, Work qualification to evidence their ability to manage their accommodation, whilst moving towards employment. Having constructed a qualification that gives young people this real, transferable experience, we now need to train our staff to deliver the qualification, and pilot it, using young people's feedback and experience to revise the structure and content to ensure it meets most effectively the needs of young people at risk of future homelessness or unemployment, including potentially school leavers.

The help we are looking for is to meet the costs of training the Calman staff team to deliver this qualification to young people on the ground, to assess feedback from staff and young people, and finalise the qualification, which can then be used with young people across Inverness, and potentially people of other ages to address the challenges of homelessness or unemployment.

After the six month period covered by this application, involving development and initial roll out and testing of the programme, it is planned that it will be offered to other organisations working with vulnerable young people and future young people coming through homelessness at Calman. This will ensure sustainability of the project beyond the six-month timescale, whilst also extending the benefit more widely, to vulnerable individuals of other ages and needs.

In the period of the project, government funding does not exist to make this happen, or enable the participation of the young people involved. As indicated above there is the prospect that once completed this programme can be delivered in future to individuals on training programmes. This is additionality that the project can deliver, by extending the learning available to young people or others in these circumstances to include how to manage their personal circumstances.

- 1.5 Please tell us how your project or activity will help the Council to meet its Public Sector Equality Duty to:
 - Get rid of unlawful discrimination, harassment and victimisation;
 - Make sure that people from different groups* are treated fairly and have equal chances to use services and that there is more equality between groups*;
 - Make sure that people from different groups* get on together.

*Groups are people who have "protected characteristics" in the Equality Act: age, gender reassignment, pregnancy and maternity, religion or belief, sexual orientation, disability, marriage and civil partnership, race and sex.

For example are people with protected characteristics likely to face barriers; how you intend to tackle these barriers; does your project promote inclusion?

One of the recognised strengths of Calman Trust has been our ability to reach out to, and gain the trust and confidence of, vulnerable and marginalised young people who are hardest to reach.

The design and development of the project will be constantly reviewed and adapted to ensure that it reaches the young people effectively, and a way that is meaningful. Examples of the methods we use in this regard include:

- Marketing of our services, tailored to meet the needs of the range of stakeholders we communicate with, including young people who live in all areas of Inverness:
- Digital media and social media/networks:
- Word of mouth:
- Building relationships and referral channels with stakeholders and agencies;
- Ensuring our service provision is accessible and does not inadvertently discriminate or put up barriers to access;
- Recognise socio/economic challenges and barriers to access, and put in place support to address this (e.g. support for travel);
- Provide support for child care provision wherever possible; and
- Regular training and development of staff.

The project will include training of our staff team in understanding the barriers that could prevent young people affected by protected characteristics or particular needs from participating successfully, and how to overcome these.

Learning materials will be developed to take account of young people's literacy and numeracy needs, and sensory impairments and any non-English language requirements, for example through use of different formats, or non verbal means of communication. This includes use of translators or signers where appropriate.

Because delivery of the qualification is individualised around the needs of each young person, and delivered in their home, school or workplace, all coaching, assessment and feedback is individual, focused on the young person's particular needs and abilities, and confidential.

The entire project is designed to equip young people at risk of exclusion with the ability and opportunity to have a sustainable life in the community, living to their potential. The primary target audience is young people who are homeless or at risk of homelessness and/or unemployment, which is the client group with whom Calman work on a daily

Annually, Calman provides support to approximately 200 young people in Inverness, aged 16-25 who are referred as homeless or at risk of homelessness (199 in 2014-15, average age 19). These are young people who are affected by a range of barriers that make them vulnerable to repeated breakdown in their personal circumstances. The following table describes their identified vulnerability.

| Had a Live Homeless Claim | 77% |
|---------------------------|-----|
| Mental Health Issues | 37% |
| Learning Difficulties | 12% |
| Health issues | 33% |

A snapshot taken during the year of young people using Calman support to manage independent living found that of 69 young people in Inverness being supported on that day, only 19 were in any form of work or training.

Of 128 girls supported in Inverness last year, 64 have one or more dependent children, a total of 76 children, of whom 9 were taken into local authority care.

Of the 37 young people from Inverness engaged in training in March, 20 had an issue with their living circumstances, which they received support to address from the Calman support service.

As Welfare Reform takes effect, it becomes increasingly important that young people are able to progress towards employment, managing their accommodation needs at the same time, to avoid sanctions and exposure to changes in benefit entitlement. It is in this context that the need for the project arises:

- An easily followed structure for learning through practice, teaching vulnerable young people in unstable housing circumstances how to manage independent living and keep a roof over their head;
- A crossover programme of learning how to manage independent living combined with taking first steps towards employment, enabling young people identified as homeless or at risk of homelessness also to prepare for the world of work, where the qualification provides an easily accessible and meaningful learning programme;
- A programme of learning leading to a qualification that can be offered to young people who are engaged in employability training, that simultaneously enables them to learn how to keep their home, or prepares them for the time when they will have an independent home, and how to manage this;
- A programme that can be taken into schools or a residential setting, to teach young people about the practical reality of finding or having a home or job, as a means of preventing youth homelessness and unemployment.
- By gaining a qualification at the end of their learning programme, delivered in the practical setting of their own home, work or learning environment, young people can evidence their learning to landlords or employers, thereby improving their chance of accessing accommodation or employment. They can also take confidence from this concrete evidence of their learning, to progress further.
- As Highland Council seeks to prevent youth homelessness and unemployment, the Live, Learn, Work qualification offers an effective tool to this end, especially effective if linked to the offer of accommodation.

1.12 Is this a new or additional activity or project? – Yes X No □

If yes, what change will your activities or project make in your community?

Training the Calman support staff and trainers to deliver this qualification will enable the delivery of a holistic practical learning activity to young people in Inverness, addressing independent living requirements and employment expectations within one programme, accessible to young people in a home setting or at work, enabling their progression on both fronts.

This will enable vulnerable young people in the area who have to transition into independent adulthood with little or no support from family networks to learn the skills to hold down a job and keep a home, in a practical manner that makes sense to them, and is therefore applied. The fact that their practical learning is evidenced in a qualification attaches transferability to the experience, potentially evidence that the young person can take to future housing or employment choices.

This is a new qualification, devised by Calman to meet the needs specifically of young people who are homeless or at risk of homelessness and/or unemployed, lacking a plan for the future. By training the Calman staff to deliver this programme, to a plan whereby feedback will be used to revise and refine the structure and content, leading to SQA accreditation, two outcomes are achieved: a qualification that can be used in schools, residential settings etc, to prevent youth homelessness and unemployment; and a

The project will be completed within year 1, after which trained Calman staff will offer training to clients of other homeless services in the future, with a view to enabling vulnerable adults to develop the skills to sustain an independent home and take first

Isobel

Stewart has asked for my comments on your application.

On the face of it this appears to describe a service very close to the existing housing support service you are providing under the current housing support contract.

Would it be possible to describe how the service for which you are seeking funding via the Common Good Fund is different to the support provided under the current contract.

I'd be particularly interested in:

The object of the application is to cover the costs of developing a new qualification, called Live, Learn, Work, for young people preparing to take their first steps into work and an independent home, testing the content preparatory to SQA accreditation, and training various staff across the organisation to deliver this qualification. It comes from our experience of working with young people around the time of leaving home, with a focus on developing capability/prevention of future difficulties.

It is not to deliver housing support, rather the development of a qualification that can be offered to young people in schools, or potentially young people leaving care or prison, in order to prepare them for the future.

This is designed firstly to be a preventative initiative that can avoid future need for housing support.

(If appropriate however the qualification could be offered to young people receiving housing support to evidence their progress in developing the capability to keep a home of their own, linked to their introduction to the world of work. This would not be duplication of housing support, but a way of structuring the actual delivery of housing support, linked to employment, and of evidencing the young person's progress on both fronts in a manner that is potentially valuable in the context of Universal Credit.)

In working towards the Live, Learn, Work qualification, young people in schools, residential care or prison etc would undergo structured learning activity, plus work placements to demonstrate their consistency over time, and in terms of their accommodation enabled to learn basic housekeeping skills within their current living setting, in a manner that will transfer to a home of their own.

• Referral arrangements

No new referral process is involved. Young people in schools and the other settings above can be offered the opportunity to work towards the Live, Learn, Work qualification in the context of the Curriculum for Excellence. The staff trained in the qualification can support them and their teachers etc to do this. If a young person receiving housing support were offered the chance to work towards the qualification this would be within their housing support plan, not additional, a way in which they can evidence to themselves and others what they have learnt. By linking the accommodation module to employability and workplace skills the young person can be enabled to understand the world of work at the same time.)

Type of support involved (ie main support tasks)

The independent living module is designed to enable the young person to develop capability in core areas which are essential to managing independent living, again very much as a preventative measure. Young people achieving this module will have demonstrated skills, confidence, knowledge and understanding required to sustain independent living. Areas covered will include:

Attending appointments on time;

Communicating with others and managing mail;

Managing money;

Managing a tenancy (e.g. Follow a routine to keep their space clean and tidy, Laundering clothes and bedding, Following a routine for recycling and disposing of refuse, Describing how to be a good neighbour, Maintaining a positive relationship with a landlord); and

Health and wellbeing (e.g. How to register with Dentist and Doctor, The importance of eating regularly, Behaviours that put the individual at risk and hoe to avoid these, Where to go for help.)

Outcomes expected

The outcomes from the project are that:

The qualification will be accredited and available for wider use (potentially with older adults as well as adolescents);

A core staff team is trained in delivery of the qualification and able to support others to do this in future; Young people undertaking the qualification will have had a practical learning experience that prepares them in key aspects of independent living and the workplace, with evidence of their learning reflected in the qualification. As a result, young people can leave school, residential care or prison with a good practical preparation for a first job or home of their own.

The qualification can evidence the young person's ability to prospective employers or landlords, and in the process prompt confidence that the individual has made significant preparation to take on a job/tenancy.

I'm afraid any feedback would need to be quick to meet the current round of bidding. Could you get something back tomorrow?
